To Whom It May Concern:

I have had the pleasure of working with International Creative Metals on Beyer Blinder Belle's projects at Rockefeller Center. BBB designed the upgrades of Rockefeller Plaza and the adjacent retail concourse. Extensive architectural metal work is present throughout these projects, including railings, bollards, decorative planters, decorative expansion joint covers, pedestals for sculpture, custom frames for bas-reliefs and cast plaques.

ICM was a major participant in all of these endeavors, coming through for the owner with terrific craftsmanship and thorough coordination with work of other trades. Setrak Agonian made himself and his key personnel available to both the design and construction management teams when necessary to ensure that the best possible result was obtained. I believe the completed work speaks for itself. When decorative, ornamental metal work, be it restoration, or new work, is called for, I highly recommend ICM.

Sincerely,

Larry Gutterman, AIA
